

XPS SUPERCARBON HOOKS

Extra Performance Series is the name of Trabucco quality hooks developed for top match anglers, which now gets much wider also touching different segments such as feeder fishing, commercial carping, trout fishing, light drifting and beach ledgering.

In line with existing series, also the new ones display "extra performance", because the extreme quality is not only achieved with the development of new shapes, but also through the employed materials, the finish and functional details. The strength/lightness ratio has been tailored size by size, taking advantage of the special hi-carbon content steel, which is only available in Japan, where these fantastic hooks are produced under strict quality control. All points are chemically sharpened, then further finished by laser to get absolute perfection and durability.

N Nickel Regular

This pattern is well known all over Europe since when the carbon content steel was unknown in the fishing tackle industry. From roach to mullets, from eels to soles, it has caught so many species both in fresh and salt waters, showing great efficiency when baited up and while removed from fish mouth. It's popularity is certainly also due to the long point, parallel to shank, and to the narrow ankle which provide bait and fish hold. All bait which are normally pushed on to the shank are finely matching it: from pinkies and squatts to earthworms in freshwater; from anchovy fillet to shrimp's tail in the saltwater.

BR Bronzed Forged MicroBarb

Its code recalls the classic 120, as its shape comes from long shank popularity, but its strength is stepped up. In fact the wire thickness is oversized, thus the point has a wide base which enables it to bear stress and torsion inevitably generated during those long fights with big fish. Maggots, casters and worms are the ideal baits for it to catch chub, carp and huge bream, both on the pole and on waggler or feeder rods. No need to add a big barb on such strong point: that's why Trabucco team opted for micro barb instead.

An excellent match hook, destined to high grade anglers who can draw the best from it by fine elastication of their poles. In fact, lightness is its best merit, and this factor puts the 607XB on top of roach and bream hooks, which are known to be very careful when picking up any bait which is presented in unnatural way. Before float's antenna shows any sign of life, they reject the hookbait, which is left damaged and surely cannot produce another bite! The micro barb is a must to limit the damage to delicate living baits like bloodworm, maggots and small worms.

INNOVATIVE PACKAGING

The new bags contain 25 hooks to keep the individual price as low as possible. Their design has been cared in every detail, with upper part of the card changing main colour according to hook's finish, while the lower portion is almost free from decorations to allow the best possible visibility of the product inside. In order to enable the consumer to quickly identify the hook's shape, it has been printed in a dedicated cell. For the first time ever, also wire diameter is indicated on each bag, so that the user can evaluate the strength level, maybe making comparisons between different series.

IN THE SHOP

Every 10 bags of hooks, the retailer will find a back card showing the product's item number. Such card should take place on the display wall, beyond hook's bags, and will be useful to place an order when he will run out of stock.

NICKEL BLACK NICKEL BRONZE

631XB & 631XK

For all match anglers across Europe this pattern is a must since the eighties, and its popularity is probably second to none, thanks to the extreme efficiency in many conditions. The wide, round bend can accommodate several baits like maggots, casters worms, sweetcorn, punched bread and all their cocktails. Good for waggler and feeder fishing, has shown great chances with the bolognese and pole, too. Trabucco offers it in two different finish: bronzed and black nickel.

An extra-fine version of series 631, it keeps the round, wide bend and the long point, but it's even more match fishing oriented thanks to the fine wire, which enables to obtain perfect presentation when fish are particularly shy. Also the shank's length has been changed, opting for a longer lever which improves strike's efficiency very much. In case of sea match fishing with telescopic poles or bolognese rods, such shank helps saving hooklinks from fish teeth. The micro barb does not damage the delicate worms like bloodworm and is also perfect for bread punch canal fishing.

Among many variations of the classic 631, now available in the market, this genuine one from Trabucco offers an incredible strength to catch big fish with small bait like single maggot, casters and worms. Compared to the standard 631 pattern, its wire is oversized and point is much longer, a detail which the experts regard as very important. The micro barb does not damage the living baits, with the obvious advantages in terms of catches. Nowadays, match venues are subject to extreme pressure, so the fish are more and more careful in front of big hookbaits and quite often pick up very small ones. Try it, and you will understand why we forecast a great success for this series.

More and more match anglers now understand the great advantages of barbless hooks, which really can improve catch rates not only with the pole, but also with bolo, match and even feeder rods. All the words spent by experts, journalists and match winners about natural presentation immediately come into reality when somebody tries hooks like this 701XK by Trabucco. Both living baits and fighting fish are held by hook's ankle, a vital part of the design because all stress and hooking power get through it. Problems greatly solved by a slightly forged curve and an in-turned point.

Specially developed for tough match conditions, when sudden hookbait change can produce unexpected bites. That's why this series has been designed with medium wire and with a wide gape which can allow to alternate different bait without replacing the hook. Therefore, a bunch of maggots can leave the place to a sweetcorn grain, or to a worm and caster cocktail, or even to several, small worms to form a sort of octopus. Practically, the angler can go for colour contrast or stimulate the attack by wriggling baits. A true allrounder which can't miss in a serious seatbox.

N Nickel Regular

A great balance between lightness and strength is the secret of this allround hook series, which is perfect to match a wide variety of baits: from maggots to worms, from bread to sweetcorn, from natural honey worms to silicone ones which nowadays are getting more and more popular among trout anglers. The ankle is there to keep the hookbait into correct position, and this is more important in case of trout fishing, because the whole thing must actually rotate during retrieve. On normal hooks, the hookbait tend to slide down the bend, affecting the rotation: this is not the case with 440XN.

BN Black Nickel Forged MicroBarb

This is a medium wire, long shanked hook which can face thousands of fishing conditions with great success. The black nickel finish is not only a matter of fashion or a nice cosmetic, but provides protection from abrasion and salt, specially on the weakest area, which is the point's end. This means that the hook can last longer, specially in tough conditions like saltwater fishing. The ankle has been designed to suit trout fishing, because soft worms need to be kept in place, otherwise they tend to slide down the gape, actually affecting the rotation of hookbait, which is vital to catch many fish.

710XB

BR Bronzed F Forged B Bent

A great hook to be used when the stress is high, but some finesse is needed at the same time. It's the case of big chub fishing with the bolognese rod and casters as hookbait. The presentation must be spot on, but the fish requires strength to hold and drive it to the landing net. It's also the case of matches involving feeder fishing, specially when bream are the target species: some lightness in the approach pays dividends, but any bonus fish must absolutely reach the keepnet. The most innovative area of this hook is the point, as it's fine on top, then it quickly gets thick and ends with a relatively small barb. Easy penetration as soon as the fish picks up the bait, then safe hold. Definitely worth a try.

In most rivers holding big fish and nearly all commercial lakes, the barb is banned to protect fish destined to be released. That's why the new XPS range also include a hook like this, combining high strength with barbless point. The bent gape provides great hooking efficiency, while the in-turned point creates a narrow ankle which is in charge of holding the fish during hard fight. With black nickel finish, the point gets an extra protection against wear, allowing the angler to catch many fish without being forced to replace the hook before the end of the match.

The correct presentation of a living crab on three XPS 735XN hooks, simply the best in the sea bream fishing. In spite of the rig, the crab is free to walk on the sea bottom, attracting the attention of the fish. The hook's size doesn't matter so much, because fish teeth actually crunch the crab's shell, enabling the points to fit, but it's their strength which counts the most. With their special carbon steel and forged bend, 735XN hooks are actually too strong even for such a powerful fish!

Specially dedicated to sea fishing, this hook is tremendously reliable and efficient. For such reason it's the main choice of boat anglers in the Mediterranean sea, who can catch big fish with paste bait or even tough shells. Compared to shank's length, the point is quite long, as it goes beyond 50% of total hook's length. This specification grants a firm hold in any condition, and, combined with beak profile plus in-turning design, makes a fantastic combination of power and safety.

XPS SPECIAL SERIES

The five series shown in the 2015 catalogue are confirmed also for 2016 season, because the success they gained amongst top match anglers has really been wide and enthusiastic. Three of these series feature the PTFE finish, a Japanese technology which pushes hook's efficiency to an higher level.

TEF-TEK

PTFE is a well known polymer which is frictionless and highly resistant to wear. Once applied to XPS hooks, it dramatically improves their performances.

- Camouflage: the hook's colour is faded, thus less obtrusive towards the environment in which fish live and feed. The absence of any reflection is worth specially when fishing shallow or gin clear waters.
- Protection: the PTFE treatment protects the point from abrasion caused by multiple catches and inevitable hit to the bottom or snags.
- Efficiency: thanks to the extremely smooth surface, the knot's coils get very much tight and neat. Consequently, the knot's volume is reduced with the resulting improved presentation.
- Bait hooking: The hook's point gets easily through living bait's skin, without causing any tear even in case of thick wire, which is the case of most feeder patterns.

FEEDER HOOKS

In spite of being oriented to same fish species of some other fishing techniques, the feeder fishing has some peculiarities that make necessary specific hooks. First of all, the existence of a match circuit has increased the awareness of hookbait balance importance, in which the weight of the hook matters greatly.

The extensive use of multi-fiber lines, without any elasticity, puts the hook under extreme stress, despite the use of shock leader surely cushions it.

Finally, the Method Feeder involves short hooklinks and causes strong reactions by the fish, because the bait presentation is so good that the takes are quite confident: a scenario in which the hook must bear enormous traction, concentrated in a short time span.

That's why we developed this special hook's range, finished in Matt Black, all strictly eyed and featuring an accurate balance between strength of the structure and efficiency of the point.

THE FIVE MERITS OF TRABUCCO FEEDER HOOKS

- The reliability, a primary value, considering the size and strength of target fish
- The eye, as with knotless knot a new world of opportunities is available to everybody

- The Matt Black finish, which doesn't cast any glare in the water, avoiding to scare fish
- The Barbless solutions, modern, not fashionable but simply vital for the serious angler
- The wire diameter indication, which enables to compare and evaluate hook's strength

NEW METHOD PLUS

A radically efficient hook, boasting a very high percentage of catches in relation to the number of bites, thanks to the clever design of the curve and the point, which makes it, practically, a "circle" commercial hook. The strength of the shank is in contrast to the point profile, which is high, thin and sharp, a guarantee in a fishing technique that is based on the self-hooking rig's properties. The out-turned eye eliminates stress on the hooklink, while the anti-glare finish adds a subtle effect.

NEW XS SPECIMEN

The symbol identifying this series can be read under double meaning: "extra strong" as super-rugged, but also "excess" as exaggeration. Either way, a nice program in any fishing situation involving high stress and extreme pulls, because exceeding in the resistance never hurts. The forged bend is ready to bear everything, strictly cooperating with the high, beaked point. In the larger sizes, it is ideal for hair-rigged mini boilies, now permanently present in the bait bag of all commercial fans.

NEW MATCH SPECIALIST

It's the lightest among Trabucco Feeder hooks, with a relatively thin shank. This feature puts it on the fore front when tough fishing is the norm, a typical condition of the last hour in the match or during the cold season, when even the most shy bite must absolutely be converted into a catch. With maggots, worms, pellet or sweetcorn the beak, barbless point does the job by itself, from the moment of the first grip in the fish's mouth till the last fight in front of the waiting landing net.

NEW SUPER SPECIALIST

Perfect for hair rig presentation of pellet and sweetcorn on the bottom, it comes from a classic carp hook design, which has been modified at barb area, drastically reduced to micro size. The series has been developed to provide high levels of resistance even in small sizes such as 14 and 16, because today it is increasingly common to tempt big fish with tiny bait, in the commercial circuit but also in the open waters. A strategy that can relieve the attention of fish when they have already taken plenty of food.

NEW 10607N

A timeless classic in lake trout fishing, made much more advanced through the reduction of the barb size to a bare minimum. Its structure is quite fine as to facilitate the hookbait's rotation, but rather strong to withstand the stress of the fish lifting from water. The nickel finish protects the point tip from wear and, at the same time, with its flashes adds attractiveness to the hookbait. It is recommended to snell it with a baitholding barb, facing upright. In smaller sizes it's a great maggot allrounder.

NEW 10608N

An excellent lake trout hook, with a long shank that eases quick baiting and an unique, two steps bend which increases the overall efficiency, reducing the percentage of missed bites or fish loss during retrieve. The angle at the point's base is rather narrow, in order to give a quick start to the hookbait's rotation, as soon as the rig hits the water. With its forged bend, it offers the required strength to lift trout off the water without risks. Classic nickel finish, which adds attractiveness to the hookbait.

NEW 10608B-BL

Specially developed for river trout fishing, it comes from competition experiences and respects the regulations of the regions where the barbed hooks aren't allowed. The high point provides optimal holding and instant penetration thanks to barbless design, while the narrow angle is essential for the hookbait's rotation. The long shank is a classic for the earthworm; the bend is forged to provide the necessary strength to lift trout from water. The special 4S size is exactly 10 mm wide to match the rules in force on some rivers.

NEW 10004N

Classic long shank, straight, thin wire, designed for natural bait, which the micro barb doesn't damage, while maintaining their vitality. The smaller sizes find space in the tackle box of any demanding matchman, who pays attention to the lightness of the hook to obtain perfect presentations. The largest sizes are suitable for trout fishing in difficult conditions, with honey worm and delicate aquatic larvae. Nickel finish is an evergreen solution to get wide acceptance from the whole world.

NEW 10361BN

It's pretty interesting because it belongs to the limited club of strong hooks with eye, a segment of the market which grows in line with size and toughness of big fish, both in fresh and salt water. Feeder fishing at sea is discovering unexplored opportunities, and it is known that the strength of Gilt Head Bream and Sea Bream requires hooks of proven reliability. It is advisable to tie the hook on the shank, passing line through the eye to limit the stress on it and keep a perfect alignment to the shank.

NEW 10006BN-R

The true connoisseurs of Chub fishing, those who always think about it in excess of two pounds weight, will surely welcome this beautiful straight hook, eyed and finished in Black Nickel to last longer and look unobtrusive in crystal clear waters. Tie it in a loop for the maximum mobility and total reliability, and go with maggots and casters to tease the prince of all rivers. Those who fish with maggots at sea side will discover that such loop enables to go up with hooklink's diameter, because the hook has the same freedom normally granted by a ultralight line, useless with Seabass, Gilt Head Bream and Sea Bream!

A multi-purpose hook, a real wild card to be played in the lake trout fishing with honey worms or earthworms when fishing is easy, specially at the start of the match, but also at sea with maggots, considering its proven strength and its deadly hooking capacity. But it's the Black Nickel finish his secret weapon, because it's not just a colour, but a protective treatment against abrasion or the aggression of salt water. Consequently, the point tip keeps its sharp profile even after tens of catches. Great!

P1039 MATCH

A classic hook for modern feeder fishing, offering a nice balance between strength and lightness. The out-turned eye helps knotless knot to be used to form hair rigs and present sweetcorn, pellets and mini boilies. The fantastic beak point is designed with a fine top edge in order to provide the first prick when the fish bolts and is strong enough to hold firmly during the fight with big fish.

P1003 POWER

Nowadays, the gap between heavy feeder and carp fishing is narrow as never before, specially thanks to method fishing and thanks to the wide offer of dedicated baits such as pellets and mini boilies. This means that hooks are subject to higher pressure than in the past, so Trabucco team decided to also develop special hooks like this. Every detail has been carefully studied: from wire thickness to turned eye, from super sharp beak point to nice bronzed finish, a must for this sort of hooks.

F31-SURF

Specially developed for light surf casting, it's the ideal weapon to search fish when they are particularly shy, as it can present worms in the most natural way. The beak point grants penetration and holding properties, while the long shank offers room for long worms, easing both baiting and disgorging operations. The straight eye can be tied in several ways, saving most of the line's breaking strength.

NEW F-32 SURF

It has been so named because it's a sister series of the legendary Hisashi F-31, born from same concept but with shorter stem and higher strength. Therefore, it's destined to the toughest conditions, because the design of its curve is likely to answer with energy to the strain applied on the point tip, converting the strike force into precision and depth of penetration. Black Nickel finish protects the point from the aggression of the salt and the abrasions resulting from harsh life within the waves.

HOW TO TIE SURFCASTING HOOKS WITH TWISTED LINE

The hooklink with twisted line gives the hookbait a great mobility, both because it allows the use of a relatively thin line, and because the hook is not bound by a knot on the shank, but is free to swing within a loop. The twisted line which born from the loop is closed with a 8 knot at least 2 cm far from the hook; it offers resistance to the teeth of the fish and ends with a valuable bait-holding whisker. Below we see the stages of execution of the twisted line and the 8 knot.

TWISTED LINE

- The line gets through hook's eye and is twisted in two opposite ways.
- The loop size can be reduced by pulling and releasing.
- The twisted line's length can be adapted, then it must be closed by an 8-knot.

8 LOOP

- The twisted line folds back, forming a loop.
- The hook gets through the loop, making an "eight".
- Moisten the knot and pull it gently.
- Final completed 8-loop hooklink.

SABIKI

Sabiki rigs are the best way to fish from the boat for small pelagic predators such as mackerel and scad. The chemically sharpened carbon hooks are equipped with feathers, fluorescent beads and fish skin. We suggest to use our rigs with a weight proportioned to the stream of the water. A too heavy lead will make your fishing not really good. Your Sabiki must always fluctuate in the stream.

FUEDAY

Ready tied rigs for both freshwater and saltwater fishing, that can be used even without any live baits thanks to the special feathers and fish skins used to assemble them. With Sabiky you'll be able to catch fishes all around the world. Each rig have been tested for long time before its launch on the market. One of the most important advice is to try them with different size of leads, as they allow you to change the retrieve. Instead to use a lead you can try them with a feeder filled with groundbait, to stimulate the fishes to feed. Available in different combinations hook/monofilament, in many varieties and different colours.

GREY MULLET SPECIAL

This 5 or 8 hooks rig has been designed and created for grey mullet fishing, but it has also proven attractive to many other species. It can be used in two different ways: 1) On the surface, baited with a piece of stale bread - 2) On the bottom, with a tangerine-sized ball of groundbait. For the latter application, Trabucco Team Master Mullet White groundbait is recommended.
